Dr. Anne Glerum is a clarinetist and educator based in Mobile, Alabama. She serves as the Assistant Professor of Music in Clarinet at the University of South Alabama, where she teaches applied clarinet lessons, clarinet ensemble, and woodwind methods.

As an active performer in the Gulf Coast region, she performs with multiple regional orchestras, including the Mobile Symphony Orchestra, Tallahassee Symphony Orchestra, and Panama City Symphony. She has also performed with ensembles such as Sinfonia Gulf Coast, the Gainesville Orchestra, and the New Jersey Wind Symphony. Glerum often participates in chamber music of many kinds, including outreach performances with the Cascade Wind Quintet and the Fountain Five Wind Quintet. She participated in a multimedia performance with the Florida State University Graduate Clarinet Ensemble at ClarinetFest in Dublin, Ireland in 2024, in which the ensemble commissioned two new pieces for clarinet choir. Glerum has also appeared as a soloist with the University of Florida Wind Symphony as the winner of the Graduate Concerto Competition in 2021, and on the Master Players Concert Series at the University of Delaware in 2023.

Dr. Glerum holds a Doctor of Music degree in Woodwind Performance from Florida State University, a Master of Music degree in Clarinet Performance from the University of Florida, and a Bachelor of Music degree in Music Education from the University of Delaware. Her primary clarinet instructors have included Deborah Bish, Jonathan Holden, Mitchell Estrin, and Christopher Nichols.
